To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Maine in Legislature assembled

THE Proprietors of the Penobscot Boom Corporation respectfully represent, that they have been at great expense in erecting the Penobscot Boom, for the protection and security of the Logs which annually float down the Penobscot River And for the protection, security and delivery of these Logs to the rightful owners and claimants, your petitioners are at a great annual expense

To protect the interest and meet the convenience of the public, large sums of money must necessarily be annually appropriated by the proprietors to defray the expenses of the Booms

To the encouragement of the Proprietors to enable them to meet these appropriations and expenses and to put the Booms annually in a condition to meet the wants and convenience of the public, your petitioners would humbly pray that they may be allowed a fair reasonable and adequate toll or boomage upon the Lumber which is annually secured and protected in their Booms, and that they may have a sufficient lien upon the Lumber to secure the payment of such Boomage and other expenses and that the Legislature in their wisdom will adopt such regulations as to Toll and Boomage as shall be for the mutual benefit of your petitioners and those whose Lumber they secure and protect and as in duty bound will ever pray SAMUEL VEAZIE

New READING BOOK for Schools.

THE MONITORIAL READER or a Monitor to Youth holding up to their view Models whereby to form their own Characters. By DANIEL ADAMS, Author of Adams's New Arithmetic

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

THE MONITORIAL READER possesses distinctive traits The object is to supply what is believed to be the great desideratum in our schools, a series of exercises relating to what concerns the practical matters of life truth, integrity, honesty, industry, temperance, forethought, frugality, patient endurance of adversity, and whatever else tends to form and fix the character of youth

We wish to impress it on the minds of those, into whose hands these exercises shall come, now, in this seed-time of life, what is here so abundantly inculcated, that 'Every man is emphatically the architect of his own fortune that with themselves it lies whether they shall ever be any thing or nothing that a moneed capital to begin with does not weigh a whit in the balance for or against them that coming into life with health, strength, capacity for labor, good education, a useful and respectable trade, habits of industry sobriety punctuality, frugality and, above all with a GOOD AND UNSULLIED CHARACTER, they have the best of all capital a moral capital the noblest of all power moral power and the most certain means of honest and honorable accumulation and fortune, and may be sure, under circumstances ordinarily propitious, to rise to that competency of influence respect and general confidence, and that honorable measure of wealth and independence, which should fully satisfy a reasonable and virtuous ambition"

EXTRACTS FROM RECOMMENDATIONS

The influence will all be found on the side of virtue, morality and religion Occasional comments are given Difficult or unusual words are defined Prose and poetry are suitably intermingled

It is hardly to be imagined that this book should fail of popularity It certainly would not, had it not so many competitors that have got the start of it in the race As it is, its mettle is such as to give it fair promise of ultimate success in the contest Boston Recorder

Dr Adams Having examined to some extent your Monitorial Reader, I am pleased with its plan, its object, and the manner in which it has been executed It seems adapted to the intellectual and moral improvement of those for whose use it was designed I trust it will prove to be what its author fondly anticipates

(Rev) Z S BARSTOW, Keene

It is just such a book as our New England boys and girls will be glad to see, for it inculcates in a pleasing manner industry, frugality truth, honesty, temperance peace, kindness, fortitude, and a cheerful piety The Vocabulary, at the end, and the arrangement for defining words will add to its value in the hands of a judicious teacher

(Rev) ABILL A. LIVERMORE, Keene

We have also recommendations from a number of individuals and periodicals among which are D Crosby, Preceptor of the High School Nashua, J Newton Brown, Professor of Theology at New Hampton It is also adopted by the Associations of School Teachers in Cheshire and Hillsboro' counties, and by the School Committee of Concord

About 8000 copies have been published, and mostly disposed of

HUMAN HAIR.

CLEANLINESS OF THE HEAD AND HAIR.

STRANGE it is that persons who attend strictly to personal cleanliness, baths, &c should neglect the Head the Hair the most essential the most exposed and the most beautiful when properly cared for, of all the gifts of the Creator Perfectly free may it be kept of dandruff or scurf with a certainty that the hair cannot fall out, by the use of the Balm of Columbia Ladies, will you make your toilet without this article? I answer fearlessly, No, if you have once tried and experienced its purifying effects -its sweet perfume

A hundred articles have been put forth on the credit of this the only first the only really valuable article A mass of testimony from all classes to these facts

LOOK OUT Counterfeits are abroad, look always for the name of COMSTOCK & Co on the splendid wrappers, and never buy it without that name

[From the Boston Chronicle Jan 10]

☞ We see by an advertisement in another column that Messrs Comstock & Co, the Agents for Oldridge's Balm of Columbia, have deputies to sell that article in Boston and elsewhere We know a lady of this city whose hair was so nearly gone as to expose entirely her phrenological developements, which, considering that they betokened a most amiable disposition was not in reality very unfortunate Nevertheless she mourned the loss of locks that she had worn, and after a year's fruitless resort to miscalled restoratives purchased some months ago, a bottle or two of Oldridge's Balm, and she has now ringlets in rich profusion, glossy, and of raven blackness We are not puffing none of the commodity has been sent to us, and, indeed we do not want any for though we were obliged to wear a wig a year ago, we have now, through its virtue, hair enough and of a passable quality of our own

Daring Fraud.

The Balm of Columbia has been imitated by a notorious counterfeiter Let it never be purchased or used unless it have the signature of COMSTOCK & Co on a splendid wrapper This is the only external test that will secure the public from deception

BANGOR, Jan. 24, 1842.

To J. S. Chadwick, James Littlefield, S. T. Chase, Nathan Perry, Jr., and Elijah Low, Jr.

GENTLEMEN.— Being unable, on account of previous engagements, to comply with your invitation to unite with the Officers and Members of Engine Company No. Five, in the celebration of their Anniversary this evening, permit me in expressing my own views, as well as those of our fellow-citizens generally, of the deservedly high estimate of the character and services of your department, to propose the following sentiment.

The Fire Department of the City of Bangor. Its members are among our most enterprising and valuable citizens; its promptness in action cannot be surpassed, and its energy is untiring, its efficiency incalculable, and its cost to the public only nominal. The work in which it is so ardently engaged is a matter of genuine patriotism, and justly inheriting what it generally receives the patriot's true reward—a large measure of public regard and honor.

I remain, gentlemen,
Your ms. ob't servt,
BRADFORD HARLOW.

Our Chief Like our weapon "cold water" the more used, the better appreciated.

The Engineers of the Fire Department, watchful and always on the alert.

Engine Company, No 3 Always ready for the contest she comes up to the work in "Boston" style.

Engine Company, No. 4 The faithful servant "Jenny" ever sure of "all hands to the rescue!"

Firemens' Bank Kenduskeag She discounts 1s drafts out of 24, and never fails to redeem on demand.

The Fire Department May its members never stop to watch others; but let every one act well his part.

The Ladies of Bangor— Never unmindful of our wants we pledge them our protection and assure them that "hot coffee" shall never "put out sparks."

The Star Spangled Banner If ever duty calls, we will rally around its Standard and preserve its honor or perish in the last ditch.

Our past Foreman, F. Muzzey, Esq. In whatever situation called to by his fellow citizens he does honor to himself, and proves to be a capable and faithful servant to them.

The Fire on Smith's Bridge Surely No. 5's water did no damage.

The Landlord The beautiful supply of all the good things of our market upon his table, together with the good style with which it has been displayed before us clearly proves that he knows how to please Firemen, and is one of the Lords of the land.

Addresses were made by E. French the Chief Engineer, P. B. Mills, John S. Sayward, Chas. Heyward, Elijah Low, Jr. and volunteer sentiments were given by Thomas Jenness, Esq. A. Dole, E. T. Fox, F. Boynton, and several other invited guests, and by nearly every member of the company. We have only been enabled to collect a few of these, and the pattern is so small that we omit the whole with the general statement that they were received with great applause, were highly appropriate, and many of them exceedingly witty and mirth provoking.

☞ The last number of the Democrat contains a communication of a very singular character a sort of plea for Sabbath tipling shops, and personal drunkenness. The Washingtonians at their Convention here on the 22d of February, will find work to do if such sentiments can be sustained in a public paper, whose conductors claim to be the friends of temperance. There is more advocacy of drunkenness attempted in the article alluded to than anything we have seen for years.

☞ At Cincinnati, a short time since, damages to the amount of $500 were recovered against the owner of a dog which had bitten a child 7 years old, in the face there being proof that the dog was vicious and disposed to bite, and that the defendant had knowledge of the fact.

☞ The Anti-Slavery Fair at Hallowell on the 3d of February promises to be very rich. Mr. Remond, says the Standard, has brought over from England, a box full of English ladies' "notions" for this fair, and the assortment will be very rich and attractive.

☞ Letters from Columbus, Georgia, state that the populace were much excited against the Banks, and had threatened an attack upon the Bank of Columbus. The Columbus guards were prepared to resist any such exhibition of violence.

☞ The ship Rappahannock, Capt Drummond, cleared at New Orleans for Liverpool on the 17th inst. She carries the largest cargo that ever left an American port, viz: 3856 bales cotton, weighing 1,668,213 pounds, valued at $134,682,16.

☞ The New York Tattler of Saturday says, that one of the Vice Presidents of the late City Meeting of the sel-at cl-ss at the Exchange, in favor of the Repeal of the Bankrupt Law fell yesterday for a considerable amount.

☞ It has been decided in New York that if a [illegible] on Sunday, and the hirer kills him by hard driving, the owner cannot [illegible]

Prospects of the Bankrupt Law.

An intelligent and well informed Correspondent of the New York Tribune thus writes:

The tide of popular sentiment is pouring into the Senate with a resistless current, and the Repealers are trembling for the fate of their factious movement against the Bankrupt Bill. Benton and his associates fearful of the result of a final vote upon the subject before the middle of the next week, reluctantly yielded their assent to the second reading and reference of the Bill this morning. With all their Senators present, the vote will stand 26 to 25; and this measure of ruthless persecution will be put at rest I trust forever.

An attempt will be made on Monday, when it is expected the Committee on the Judiciary will report against it, to stave off the vote on its final passage by a protracted discussion of the merits of the Bankrupt Bill. It is well known to Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Benton, that one of the gentlemen who is instructed to vote against the repeal, will necessarily be absent from the Senate after Wednesday the 26th inst. and that it is doubtful whether he will resume his seat during the session.

The friends of the oppressed, however, will not relax their efforts to bring the matter to a decision before that period; and if they fail, there will devolve upon the President the grateful task of rescuing the hapless thousands from the iron grasp of relentless avarice. He at least will not disappoint their just expectations; for whatever may be urged against John Tyler's political doginas, I am free to say that no man's heart more promptly responds to the appeals of distress; and, no man's hand is more ready to relieve it!

I say again to the bankrupt and his suffering family, be of good cheer! The treachery that would consign you to misery and want will surely be arrested:— The measure of the Extra Session cannot be repealed.

Destruction of the New Rail Road Depot at East Boston.

In confirmation of the intelligence given by us yesterday on the authority of a passenger in the Mail Stage, the Boston Journal states:

The large new passenger depot of the Eastern Railroad, at East Boston, was destroyed by fire about 12 o'clock Tuesday, together with 50 cords of wood which was stowed in it. The wharf, for about three hundred feet, badly burnt.

The building was opened for the first time this morning; and the boat had not reached Boston when the fire was discovered. The fire was first noticed in the roof, where it spread so rapidly that the whole building was burned to the ground in half an hour. The loss is estimated at about twenty thousand dollars supposed to have caught from a spark from the steamboat chimney.

Protection of Domestic Industry Speech of the Hon. Charles Hudson.

[Concluded.]

The gentleman from South Carolina has told us that millions have been paid to the rich manufacturers, and he has more than intimated that the burdens of a tariff fall principally upon the South. As our attention has been called to this subject, let us compare the population of the South with the population of the North, that we may be able to decide this question. Take the cotton growing States, and nearly one-half of their entire population are slaves. Now, it cannot be pretended, for a single moment, that this population consume any thing like the amount of dutiable articles which is consumed by the free population at the North. Their food and their clothing pay but little duty. While all this class of Southern population contribute but little to the support of the Government, the laboring classes at the North are in the constant use of those articles which pay a revenue to the Government. Their food, their dress, the furniture of their houses, all contribute to the national treasury. If we allow that the wealthy portion of the Southern population consume an equal amount of dutiable articles with the same class at the North, I suppose it will be found true, that there is a larger portion of the white population in the Southern States who are poor, than will be found in the Northern States. The operatives of a cotton mill consume articles paying ten times as much duty as the same number of Southern slaves. It is idle, then, and worse than idle, to pretend that the South is more heavily taxed than the North. The truth is the very reverse of this. From the character and habits of our population, the burdens of taxation must fall more heavily upon the North.

But, perhaps, it may be said that the free articles those which are used in manufactures are consumed at the North more than at the South. This may be true. But some of these free articles wool, below 8 cents, for example and some of the coarse fabrics, are made free or nearly so, for the express benefit of Southern friends. But we have official documents which will decide this question. A communication from the Treasury Department, submitted to the 26th Congress, giving a detailed account of the importations in the several States, from the year 1821 to 1839, shows that the average rate per cent. actually paid on the whole amount of importations, including the free as well as the dutiable articles, amounted in Massachusetts to 38 per cent., and in South Carolina to only 28 per cent., making a difference of 10 per cent. in favor of South Carolina. And still it is represented that the South bear the greater part of the burdens of the Government!

The North, even as compared with the West, are taxed the more heavily by impost duties. This is no subject of complaint by Northern men. It arises, not from any inequality in our laws, but grows out of the nature of the case. In all new countries the inhabitants depend more upon their own products for food, and are less extravagant in their dress, than in older settlements. We, upon the sea-board, have more temptations to luxury and extravagance in dressing our persons, and furnishing our houses, than our brethren in the Western wilderness.

We have been told upon this floor that a discriminating tariff was a tax upon Southern labor to increase Northern capital. The contest, gentlemen tell us, is between Northern capital and Southern labor! Mr. Speaker, I wish to assail no part of the country; but, sir, I am compelled to say that the truth is the very reverse of this. It is Southern capital against Northern labor. The North has frequently been taunted as being rich and grasping. Gentlemen have pointed to our manufacturing villages as evidence that we were fattening upon the labor of what they denominate the great producing States. But why od gentlemen point to our manufacturing villages? Let them look to our soil, rough and rugged as it is, and compare our cultivated fields with their exhausted soil and half cultivated plantations, and ask themselves whether they cannot account for this difference, by our habits of industry, and the character of the labor we employ.

Nor is it true that our manufactories are carried off or owned by the wealthy, to the extent that gentlemen would represent. Many of our cotton and woollen mills are owned and operated by men of small capital the laborers in the mills owning a portion of the property. Many species of manufacture prosecuted in Massachusetts (and I speak of my own State only because I can speak of her more understandingly than of any other) require but very little capital. We manufacture boots and shoes to the amount of $15,000,000 annually. This large sum is to a great extent the product of labor. The conversion of a raw hide into shoes is produced by human toil. The manufacture of furniture and chairs amount to $1,300,000 annually, and labor is the principal ingredient in this product. The same is true of hats, which are manufactured to the amount of about $700,000 per year. The annual product of straw bonnets and palm-leaf hats is $2,000,000; and this begins and ends in labor, and labor, too, mostly performed by women and children. By the official statistics of Massachusetts it will be seen that there are produced annually of these little articles, these household manufactures such as straw and palm-leaf hats and bonnets a very large amount. In some towns, where such articles are manufactured, the amount in dollars is ten times the amount of the population of the town; and in some few cases twice that amount that is, a town of 2000 inhabitants will produce of straw, palmleaf, and articles of this character, $20,000, and, in some cases, $40,000, though, in the latter case, a portion of the article, partly manufactured, was obtained in the adjacent towns. These articles are, to a great degree, the product of labor, and are produced principally by the women and children And it is by unremitting toil, by patient and continued application, that these products are brought forth. By means such as these, hundreds of poor families, of lone widows and destitute orphans, are supported.

And I would gladly ask my friend from S. Carolina whether he can present a picture like this from his own State; whether the females of the males there, will submit to toil like this? He knows that they will not. And still he speaks of our manufacturers as though they were all men of overgrown capital, rolling in luxury and in wealth! I will give the gentleman a specimen of Yankee manufactures. There are gentlemen within 15 or 20 miles of my residence, who manufacture wooden ware. And what, Mr. Speaker, do you suppose they produce? I will tell you. They manufacture pails, and washboards, and mop-handles, and clothes-pins. And where do you suppose they find a market for these staple commodities? I will tell you. They send them into the Western wilderness. They have actually an agency in Missouri, to which these articles are sent for sale.

We have another class of manufactures, of a different character. Our cotton, woollen, glass, iron, and [illegible] manufactories turn out an annual product about equal to the capital invested. Take all our manufactures together, and the annual product is at least one-third more than the capital invested. Not that the annual product is so much clear gain; far otherwise. The interest and insurance on the capital and fabric, the cost of the raw material, the cost of the labor, and other incidental charges, are all to be deducted. In fact, a company may turn off an annual product greater than the capital invested, and still prosecute their business at a loss.

From this view of our manufactures, it will be seen that our fabrics are in a great degree the product of labor, and not of capital. But how is it with the products of the South? Take their great staple, cotton; of what is that the product; of labour or of capital? Of capital,—almost exclusively. Their lands are capital, and their slaves are capital, made so by their own laws. In strictness of speech, they have no labour, in the production of their cotton crop, if we except the overseers and the few white men who are employed. By the institutions and laws of the South, their slaves are property capital in the same sense that our machinery is; and, when they talk of protecting their labor, they mean, if they mean any thing, protecting their property.

In this view of the subject, I claim no originality; Mr. Woodbury that Northern man with Southern principles— Mr. Woodbury, the late Secretary, whose authority will not be disputed by my friend from South Carolina, presents the same view, in his report upon cotton in 1836. He estimates the whole amount of capital employed in the cotton culture as follows:

Capital in lands,	$312,000,000
Capital in slaves,	408,000,000
Capital in horses, cattle, &c.	20,400,000
Floating capital, for taxes, tools, overseers, &c.	30,600,000
Making a grand total of	$771,000,000

With these facts staring them in the face, will Southern gentlemen on this floor, have the effrontery to tell us, that the doctrine of protection is a contest between Northern capital and Southern labor? It is a contest between Southern capital, or what is made capital by their laws, and the free labor of the North.

The gentleman from South Carolina laments that anything should be said tending to array one part of the Union against the other; and yet, in the same speech, he speaks of Northern manufacturers as oppressors, plunderers, robbers. The gentleman tells us that, if the protective policy is adhered to, the Constitution will be destroyed; and he more than intimates that the Union will be dissolved. I regret that any gentleman should so far forget his duty to himself and his country as to speak of dissolving the Union; yes, sir, I am more grieved than alarmed at this threat; it has been repeated so often that it has lost its terror. Dissolve the Union! Who would suffer by such an event? Let gentlemen count the cost before they take a step involving such horrid consequences. But I will not dwell upon a subject so painful. But, if the Union must be dissolved, be the responsibility upon those who commit the suicidal act.

I have no disposition to array one portion of the Union against another; I would strengthen the cord which binds them together. And I believe that the measure before us is one in which we have a mutual interest. Let a discriminating tariff be wisely adjusted, distinguishing between luxuries and necessaries, between articles which come in competition with our own industry, and those which do not, and it will prove a bond of union, by imparting the greatest good to the greatest number. Such a tariff would promote alike the interest of the East and the West, the North and the South, and spread prosperity throughout the land.

Compound Boneset Candy.

This article has great fame for the cure of colds, coughs, soreness of throat, chest, &c. It is manufactured by William, Brown, Druggist, 481 Washington street, who makes it on the wholesale principle, but finds it hard work to reserve enough for himself, to supply his retail customers. He is famous, also, for his extensive assortment of candies and comfits, double and triple refined sugar, manufactured by the celebrated Stuarts, at their Steam Mill in New York. The variety and excellence of their bon bons is curious.—Boston Eve. Transcript.

The sculptor whose study is to imitate the exquisite workmanship of nature portrays in his model of the human form a broad and elevated forehead This developement is not only consonant with but sometimes necessary to the possession of a high order of mental faculty If a fine forehead is a mark of intellect it is no less an essential element of personal beauty and it is of importance to those and there are many such possessed of this prominent feature though obscured by the encroachments of a too luxurious growth of hair to remove that portion of an excrescence which tends in the crease only to deform This can be done safely speedily effectually and, if used in accordance with directions without the least inconvenience by Dr Felix Gouraud's Depilatory Powders The fuze of the lip when annoying or the short hair on the back of a ladies' neck, when too apparent the hair of a mole or the beard when big upon the cheek may all be removed and eventually the roots destroyed, by the use of this preparation
